The Project would develop the Project Site with a mixed-use development and would include approximately 590,849 sf of residential floor area or 770 units; 51,390 sf of ground-level commercial floor area; open space and related amenities; and vehicle and bicycle parking. The Project would result in a total of approximately 642,239 sf of developed floor area for a site-wide FAR of 3:1 and residential density of 157 units per acre.

The Project is designed as an “urban center” adjacent to the existing Gold Line Chinatown Station. The primary Project frontages would be along N. Spring and W. College Streets, with ground-level commercial (retail/restaurant) and residential uses, as well as public open space, along these frontages. The Project’s public open space includes a plaza at the intersection of N. Spring and Rondout Streets (the North Plaza), a plaza at the intersection of N. Spring and W. College Streets (the South Plaza), and three small outdoor seating areas along the N. Spring Street frontage. Common open space for residents would be provided in the garden courtyards atop the podium deck.
